PROUD TO SUPPORT THE NORTH SHORE LAND ALLIANCE

We are deeply honored by this recognition and remain committed to protecting the natural landscapes for generations to come.

— The Oliver R. Grace Family

CELEBRATING A LEGACY OF CONSERVATION

The Oliver R. Grace Family

We are proud to honor the Oliver R. Grace Family for their extraordinary commitment to land conservation on Long Island's North Shore.

As descendants of NYC Mayor William Russell Grace, Oliver and Carolyn Grace and their seven children continue a storied legacy of stewardship that once spanned many of acres from the "Gold Coast" to East Hampton.

Since joining the North Shore Land Alliance Board of Trustees in 2021, Oliver's leadership through the Oliver R. Grace Family Foundation has been transformative. His philanthropy has fueled vital projects, including a substantial gift for the Humes and Red Cote Preserves restoration, native tree planting at Cushman Woods, and the restoration of historic structures in Oyster Bay Cove.

While Oliver leads global investments as CEO of the Grace Family Office, he remains a tireless advocate for local land conservation. We are deeply grateful for the Graces' dedication to ensuring our community's natural landscapes endure for future generations.

Swinging for Sustainability

Great partnerships drive meaningful progress. That is why Stewart Title National Commercial Services proudly supports the North Shore Land Alliance (NSLA) and this year's Golf & Tennis Outing.

Together, we are helping preserve Long Island's treasured lands, waterways and historic spaces while supporting communities through conservation and charitable initiatives.

We are honored to be part of this effort to protect what matters today and for generations to come.

Locally. Nationally. Globally.

ADOPT-A-PRESERVE

Support the North Shore Land Alliance efforts to steward our preserves, enhance wildlife habitats and ensure recreational opportunities for our communities.

Over the past two decades, the North Shore Land Alliance has played a vital role in conserving over 1,400 acres of local land, including 19 preserves open to the public from sunup to sundown. These preserves provide significant environmental and recreational benefits, offering us clean air and water, healthy food, habitats for wildlife and spaces for reflection and recreation.

Your support will help the Land Alliance maintain the trails, enhance wildlife habitats, manage invasive species, and ensure recreational opportunities for our communities.

In Loving Memory of Hoyle C. Jones, Trustee Emeritus

With deep sadness, we report the passing of Land Alliance Board Chair Emeritus Hoyle C. Jones on May 7, 2026. He was our devoted Board Chair from 2018 to 2025, serving with dignity, integrity, generosity, a quick wit and a deep commitment to the wildlife and lands we share.

Hoyle had a storied childhood. He grew up on the Crow Indian Reservation in southern Montana, bordered by Wyoming to the south and the Northern Cheyenne Indian Reservation to the east. The Bighorn Mountains, Wolf Mountains and Pryor Mountains framed the Reservation, and the Bighorn River majestically flowed through the land. The closest "city" to Jones' home was Sheridan, Wyoming with a population of just 17,000.

Hoyle took full advantage of his idyllic surroundings, exploring the mostly untouched land with wildlife in every shape and form, riding horses and with his beloved Irish Setters. By the time he graduated from high school, his childhood experiences had given him a deep love of nature.

College took Hoyle to Washington and Lee in Virginia. A series of serendipitous events landed him in Manhattan, where he began his long and distinguished career at Citibank. Hoyle recalled standing on Wall Street, gazing up in awe at the towering buildings of New York City – a sight he could never have imagined in his early years on the ranch.

While Montana never left his heart, Hoyle set his roots in New York. There he met and married his beloved wife Botsy. With their primary residence in Manhattan, summers and weekends were spent in Mill Neck, where Botsy was born and raised. Their days on Long Island were surrounded by nature, fresh air and open space. They always planned to make the Mill Neck home their lasting residence once Hoyle retired. And that is precisely what happened.

Over the decades of visiting and living on Long Island, Botsy and Hoyle saw the area change. What were once sleepy farming communities became bustling towns. Traffic increased, clusters of homes popped up where farms had been and open space all but disappeared. When flying back to New York after trips, he would often note how green the North Shore was compared to other parts of Long Island. He vowed to do everything possible to keep it that way.

A lifelong love of the environment and nature and a deep desire to give back to his adopted community led Hoyle to the Land Alliance. He was impressed by its success in preserving environmentally important parcels of land and commitment to preserving the natural resources that make Long Island so special. By 2009, Hoyle had joined the Land Alliance's Board of Directors and from 2018 he served as the Chairman of the Board.

With a home overlooking one of the Land Alliance's most popular preserves, Hoyle was proud of what he helped accomplish with his fellow board and community members. He saw visitors from all over enjoying beautiful open spaces, exploring nature and appreciating the outdoors.

The Land Alliance is very grateful for Hoyle's many contributions and the lasting mark he has made on our community. He will be missed by all who knew him.

Explore Our Nature Preserves and Gardens

Cordelia H. Cushman Preserve, Oyster Bay Cove 12 Acres | 0.5 Mi Trail (Easy)

Mature hardwood forest comprises nearly 100 percent of this pristine 15-acre preserve. Chestnut and white oak trees dominate the canopy with some maple, beech and tulip trees making a presence as well.

Cushman Woods, Matinecock 28 Acres | 1.2 Mi Trail (Moderate)

This hilly, 28-acre forest is brimming with big trees and boasts an intricate trail system that was once a popular fox-hunting route for the Meadow Brook Hunt, from the late 1800s.

Fox Hollow Preserve, Laurel Hollow 26 Acres | 1.0 Mi Trail (Moderate)

This beautiful 26-acre preserve contains an unusual variety of distinct forest types that feature a diversity of oak, beech and other hardwoods; white pine woodland and shrub layers dominated by mountain laurel and maple-leaved viburnum.

Hope Goddard Iselin Preserve, Upper Brookville 42 Acres | 1.3 Mi Trail (Easy)

A beautiful hardwood forest, a white pine plantation planted in the 1930s and a colorful meadow comprise these 42 acres that are a popular refuge for people and wildlife alike. As you enter the preserve, make sure you stop at the kiosk to scrape your boots on the boot brush to minimize spread of invasive plant material.

Humes Preserve, Mill Neck 25 Acres | 1.5 Mi Trail (Moderate)

The property consists of meadow, woodland and freshwater wetlands and includes preserved land owned by Nassau County. The Humes Preserve is at the heart of a corridor of 150 contiguous acres of protected open spaces.

John P. Humes Japanese Stroll Garden 7 acres | Trails: 0.3 Miles (Moderate)

This unique and historic 7-acre gem of landscape design and woodland boasts an impressive collection of North American and Asian plants that constitute a beautiful Japanese landscape and impart a meditative experience.

MacDonald Property, Locust Valley 2.4 Acres | No trails

Enjoy the sound of pollinators buzzing through the pocket meadows, relax on the benches of picnic tables and in summer enjoy the fresh fruit from the recent blueberry enclosure and Asian pear tree that dates back to the MacDonald family's stewardship of the property.

Matheson Meadows, Lloyd Harbor 38 Acres | 0.6 Mi Trail (Easy)

Matheson Meadows is a 38.31-acre meadow surrounded by residential homes. The meadow has a mix of wildflowers and woody shrubs/trees. There also stands a small community of locust trees straddling a border with one of the neighbors.

Red Cote Preserve, Oyster Bay Cove 30 Acres | 1.15 Mi Trail (Easy)

This 30-acre property boasts a beautiful mix of woodlands and sweeping meadows. White pine dominates the woodland area in the southern part of the property while a mixed deciduous forest with some large oaks occurs between the fields and in the forest on the eastern side of the preserve.

Shore Road Sanctuary, Cold Spring Harbor 8 Acres | 0.25 Mi Trail (Easy)

This 8-acre parcel in Cold Spring Harbor was once an ExxonMobil fueling site. It has been transformed into a thriving grassland preserve boasting a beautiful shoreline, salt marsh and wet meadow where you will find standing water after rainstorms and ice in winter.

Wawapek Preserve, Cold Spring Harbor 32 Acres | 0.3 Mi Trail (Easy)

Perched above the historic hamlet of Cold Spring Harbor, this stunning 32-acre preserve at one time was being considered for development into thirteen house lots. Mature hardwood forest, which comprises over 60 percent of the preserve, protects air quality and provides erosion control throughout its steep ravines.

Williams Ridge, Locust Valley 4.2 Acres | 0.2 Mi Trail (Easy)

The meadow, one of several features of Williams Ridge, is perched above a pond and overlooks the vicinity of St. John's Church of Lattingtown. Adjacent to the meadow find our "Formal Garden" area, created to serve as a guide for visitors who want to add native planting areas to their properties or replace their lawn.

For more preserves or information about these properties, visit our website www.northshorelandalliance.org.

NORTH SHORE LAND ALLIANCE

Our mission is to conserve and steward Long Island's natural and historic lands, waters and environmental resources. Through education, outreach and volunteerism, the Land Alliance connects people to nature and inspires a community conservation ethic.

Since 2003, the Land Alliance has been instrumental in working with landowners, municipalities and government agencies to protect 1,500 acres of conservation-worthy lands on Long Island, including the facilitation of 600 acres of local government acquisitions. We hold 28 conservation easements on public and private land, own and manage 16 preserves open to the public and maintain an additional 132 acres of forest, meadows, wetlands, trails and a community garden. The Land Alliance is dedicated to educating the community about the importance of protecting land and water resources and biodiversity and how conserving land can mitigate and abate the harmful impacts of climate change.
